PRESENCE IN EXISTENCE

by Tora Jarsve, Janni Rasmussen and Julie Vatnebryn Thoen

noun

“the state or fact of existing, occurring, or being present”

We are always present in a physical space, a space where we live and move and breathe. A space where we exist. We can, however, not only be present physically, but also mentally. In our headspace we can access other places. When meditating, getting lost in a good book or daydreaming we can achieve being in two places at the same time. By diving into our thoughts or feelings, the physical world can become unfocused, like an unfocused camera. By entering Presence in Existence one may experience a representation of this shifting of focus, the drifting between the physical and mental space of emotions.
